

Great new classic racing colors for the Suixtil Original Race Pants

In response to ongoing requests from the many fans that Suixtil has already garnered since its recent revival, we are delighted to announce today that to supplement the very popular classic racing Argentine blue (of great fame), we have now added both classic racing British green and German white to the product grid, trusting it will offer fans more options to dress-up in period classic clothes while having greater choices.

Commenting on the launch, Vincent Metais of Suixtil said “from what we gathered, our many customers, fans and friends wanted to see extensions of the range that provided them with a combination of expanded options (to match either the event, the car or even the mood) while preserving the authenticity of what is already becoming a true icon that effortlessly reconcile form and function with comfort levels that are without match in our environment today.” The new colors, already available for order online (http://www.suixtil.com/collection_the_heritage_line.html), bring even more options to those of you who (like us) are planning to create an impression at the upcoming Festival of Speed and bring some welcome variety in today’s morose climate. These additions look set to become, like their Argentine blue predecessor, instant classics with the true connoisseurs and aficionados alike.

Further product announcements are imminent and we encourage you all to come back regularly to find out more about what Suixtil has devised for you –at life speed!
